April 30th. John Williams & Mary his wife, from Haven Manor, 13 miles from Elkton, Md. master's name John Peach. Ran away last Fall, but were caught between Newcastle & Wilmington, taken back, & whipped. Peach said if they ran away again, "he would have 'em, if he had to go to Hell for 'em." He will only, however, have to go Canada. It is not, to be sure so far, but ỹ difficulties would hardly be greater, as in ỹ other place, a slave-catcher would be sure of aid & succor by majority.

They left on ỹ night of ỹ 16th inst reached Wilmington before morning & were received by Mos. Garrett. Forwarded to Still, who sent them here. Sent on to Syracuse. $8.50

May 14th. A party of four arrived from Phila. It was headed by Captain Harriett Tubman, ỹ subordinates being Ben. Jackson & Jas. Coleman who belonged to Henry Wright of Dorchester Co. Md. Wm. A. Conoway, Laban Hudson, master, & Henry Hopkins John Houston master, of ỹ same neighborhood. They are all young men, of an aggregate market value probably of $6000.

Harriett Tubman seven years ago was ỹ slave of Edward Brodhurst of Bucktown, Md. Her master dying, ỹ estate to be settled, & two of her sisters having been sold into a 'chain-gang,' she determined to run away. She did so, & made her way to Canada. In a few months, however, she concluded to return. She went back, & sought concealment in y house of a friend who had him advised her to come. She made her arrival known to her friends & her brother, - which was "to land them out of Egypt." She had four brothers, & two sisters whose Children then slaves, to her old mistress. She could only accomplish y release of one Child, who was seven years old, whom she hired a man to carry. Return this to Canada. After again earning money at service, y Morning your she returned a second time for this, Child's mother & Sister. This woman, from a dread of being sold, had run away from her mistress, & for eighteen months had been in concealment, occasionally with a friend, once enclosed up in a boat, in y river, for a day or two, but mostly y whole time in y woods. Harriett got messages to her, hired a man, y necessary arrangements being made, to take her in a boat from Cambridge to Baltimore. Thro Harriett joined her, they were obliged to remain there several weeks, during y sisters confinement - recovery. When y Child was 5 weeks old, she induced a free coloured man to take her to Phila, as his brothers wife, who was known to be free, a kindly white man, who did not know that she was not - y brothers wife, having given y necessary bonds. Harriet went on y day before, & took y sister & child to y ~~Child~~ Canada to y Child she had rescued before. There y husband & father, who was free, soon after joined them.

The Spring following she returned a third time. Her four brothers had been fugitives all winter, in y woods, to escape y dreaded 'Chain gang.' The three eldest, however, had 'come in' at y solicitation of a lumber-man, to whom their services were important, who had hired them before, who had agreed to hire them again for one year, thus securing them from being sold before y next Christmas. The youngest, known, was not included in this arrangement, & remained in y woods, 'mo' badly bort-bitten. Harriet, from her own place of concealment, entered into communication with him, & sent him off.

At 'Camp-meeting time,' y following summer, she again went back, & went, as before, into concealment. She had interviews with y three brothers, but they all refused to leave y man who had been so kind to them, & put his own life of loss, by hiring their time out of ~~three time~~ y day of sale. To leave him there would have been a loss to him of ỹ wages of their unexpired service. She did not, however, come away empty-handed, carrying off a young man in ỹ neighborhood, who hearing of her errand to Canada with her.

At Christmas she returned again for her brothers. This term of service with ỹ lumberman had expired. At Christmas they were to have been sold. On Christmas eve. 1854. She & they left for Canada, where they soon after arrived safely.

~~However~~ There still remained behind one sister & her two children, ỹ old father & ỹ family, who, however, being free, can leave when he pleases, but will not so long as any of his children remain in bondage in Md. Harriets errand, at this time, was to bring off her sister ỹ two children. She found it, however, impracticable. But ỹ attempt is only postponed, not abandoned. Still her mission this time is not without good fruit. The mother of ỹ young man whom she took away, on a former visit, when she was unsuccessful in getting her brothers, informed ỹ poor young men who are with her to-day that she had come back. They made ỹ necessary arrangements a night ago, on Saturday, ỹ have started, Hamlett leading ỹ company. They travelled by night, & on foot to Newcastle, Del. On ỹ way, in more than ỹ have any cars after them. Along ỹ Railway, at all ỹ stations, & at mail-sale taverns bills were posted, describing ỹ two men, & offering a reward of $1200 for their capture. But for Hamlett they would, without doubt, have been taken. She led them safely to Newcastle. There she took them to ỹ house of a Colored woman, where they lay concealed there in a potato-hole. Having direction to horse, she went backward & forward between Newcastle & Wilmington, as ỹ cars to get minds to carry her company further. The evil was manifestly too great. They had to remain quiet. When it was she had no longer 20$ to pay her passage she walked, & at last a Friend consented to go for them. They were sent to Wilmington, at night, & then into Pa. at last here.

Hamlett is, by profession, a cook, & when at service earns from $15 @ $16 pr month. She has lived in N.Y. & Phila., & would have remained in one or y' Man place now, only Mat Seeley bound to get her sister & her Children next Comm Meeting Time. Thinking it may cost a good deal, she comes to be with her Brothers to secure them pecuniary aid when y' time comes for her to start again.

Sent them all to Sylvacure. (Lord) 21. –

May 15th. Bill Henry Mason, James Hurst, Master, from near Georgetown 4 Roads, Md. & Wm. Chambers, George Meadows, Master, from same neighbourhood, left Home with three others. Walked to Mr. Pleasants, & tho' y' Cars, were questioned but not stopped. Went them to Wilmington, & thence to Phila & were forwarded by Rail Sent to Albany. 5

May 16th. Jimmy Patsy, with her daughter, about 3 or 4 yrs. of age, arrived from Phila. Her master was one Jacob Shooter of Norfolk Va. Last Fall her husband escaped by vessel from Norfolk to Wilmington, & engaged y' Capt to bring y' wife & Child, y' next Trip. He belonged to another man, who had warned Jimmy's master that she could scarcely follow him. Her master came in one day with a man whom she had reason to suppose was a speculator, & she was sure that she was sold. They had no sooner left y room than she buried y child & fled to a house in y suburbs where she was told she could find refuge. Beneath this house, which was unusually without cellar, a place a few feet square had been excavated by y slave who lived there, for y concealment of fugitives. It was entered by a trap-door, covered by a piece of carpet, on which stood a bed-stead. It had no window, no means of light & ventilation, except by y door. Into this y mother & child were put, & that had been their home for y last five months. When there were no persons about they were permitted to come out for a little while, but they did not more always, sometimes remained there for days together. She was told, she says, at y expense of a story, many y slaves, organized to aid persons in her circumstances. At last y Captain of y Wilmington Schr returned, & me with y Child, were put on board y vessel. They arrived in Wilmington on Saty last. Her husband is in New Bedford. Forwarded £1.

Saml Davis, & Henry Saunders, belonged to James Hudson, mar Georgetown & Roads, & William Thomas, master John Armstrong, are y three who started with Mason & Chambers, (See 15th.,) Jesse Sutton, master Arthur Bridget, Eastern Shore of Md. has been hired out for two years on a vessel running to Phila. 18 years old Sent to Albany. £8.

May 26th. Harriet Eglin, alias Mary Brown, of Baltimore, John Delaney, by Eades Merchant, Owner. His brother died in Mexico, & bequeathed her to him, but y will was disputed, & she was to be sold to settle y dispute. She preferred, however, to take another way to reconcile y difference.

Charlotte Giles, alias Mary Thomas, belonged to Wm. Applegarth of Baltimore, who bought her at auction, her former owners having died. She was well-traded, except she was allowed to have no beaux, which was y drop too much in her cup, & she determined to assert her right to y pursuit of happiness. She also heard her mistress say that "she did not care what y devil became of her (Charlotte) after her death" which confirmed her intention. She & Hamett are cousins & were near neighbours. They intended to have at Christmas, but y could not. When they did come they borrowed $5 on Wm. y credit of Charlotte's mistress.

A Colored woman living near y depot named them as her nieces into y hands of a white woman who bought them tickets to Little York. A Mr. Gray sent them on to Columbia to a Mr. Whistle who forwarded them to Phila.

July 9th. Charles, a man of about 45, he said, but seeming much older, was brot. to y office, in a state of great trepidation. He came here on board a schr. by messenger from Petersburg Va. He belonged to Chs. Goodall, Bacon Quarter Branch 3½ miles from Richmond, a tavern-keeper. Chs. says he has had a hard life & long-wished to be free, & has tried to run away before. He walked to Petersburg, & was promised by some sailors that they would conceal him on board if he would help load y vessel. He was put in y hows, hid by y cargo, with some biscuit for food, & one a barrel of water. He remained there eight days & then was discovered by y noise he made in sickness. The Capt. took him on deck & whipped him to compel him to tell who concealed him on board. He denied that any one had any knowledge of his being there. They were then within two days of N. Y. After their arrival y Capt. sent him on board, & told him he should take him back, & y poor fellow thought he had no alternative but to go, & submissively went to work. But y Capt. sent him to market, & he fell in with a Colored man, who, on learning his story, told him to go back with his market-basket, & get his clothes, & returning to y vessel y Capt. was absent, but y mate discovered him with his bundle, & he said, however, in answer to y inquiry, that they were some of Sailor's clothes, who had been discharged. The mate threw them out when y boat left, Charles's friend took them up, & he followed, & escaped.

July 11th. John Haywood, alias John Locklear, aged about 16. His master Edward Haywood, a lawyer of Raleigh, N. C. lent him to Phil[a]. Haywood is a sporting character, & comes North every Summer. He is now in this city. At Baltimore he was joined by a man by the name of Deck, who was to travel with him. John overheard his master say to Deck, that "he expected some one would join (John) there," to which y[e] latter replied that "he was not d[a]mn'd well enough to go." Haywood has asked John if he would run away. "Of course," said John, I told him no." Nevertheless from a child he had always determined to be free, & had often told his mother that he should run away y[e] first chance he could get. He had a brother who escaped about 18 mo. since, was last heard of at Chicago, on his way to Canada.

His master, John says, was tolerable hard himself, but his wife made him a hell worse. She used sometimes to attempt to whip John, but he would not be whipped by, & she would compel her husband to do it.

He had a brother, called Caswell whom his ~~master~~ ~~shot~~ mistress once attempted to punish. In defence Caswell struck her, when she took a knife & cut him in y face. Caswell, fearing for his life, struck her again, & this, and "for true" & knocks her down. He then escaped from her & left y house. When her husband, who had been about at y time returned, was told by her of y occurrence, he took down his gun, went ~~down~~ out, without saying a word deliberately shot y Slave dead on y Spot.

John also tells another story of a fellow-slave who about 18 mos. ago was hanged for playing soldier. He had a parcel of other boys together in y woods & was drilling them in military exercise, when they were observed by some white persons, who rushed in & secured them. They were taken to y Court-house & confined for some time & whipped daily. They were then, however, tried & condemned to be hanged.

ye sentence executed, in ye presence of 2000 persons.

At Phila. John understood from his master that he should send him home. He told one of ye Servants at Jones's Hotel, who directed him to take his carpet bag, & go out of ye front door, as if he were going to get some washing done, & that he would go out at ye back, & meet him at ye corner.
